No Speaker Yet.

The House of Representatives voted three times yesterday, but unsuccessfully, for Speaker. Mr. SHERMAN received 112 votes, the highest number he has yet obtained, and within four of an election. Mr. BOCOCK, the Administration candidate, has withdrawn from the field, and some of the Democrats have transferred their votes to Mr. BOTELER, the nominee of the South Americans. We shall see how this new coalition works.

INGENIOUS ROBBERY OF $20,000 WORTH OF JEWELRY BY BOYS.—Last Wednesday night a policeman in New York City was examining the condition of the doors and window-shutters along his beat on Broadway, and was surprised to find the door of DEMPSEY & FARGIS' Jewelry Store No. 603 Broadway, unfastened. The moment he opened the door he heard a groan, and going in, found at the rear of the store a lad named BASCOM, one of the employees of the establishment, securely tied to his bed and a basket placed over his head. On being interrogated he said the store had been robbed of a large amount of jewelry by three men. Captain WALLING, of the detective force, being sent for, questioned the boy rather closely, and came to the conclusion he knew more about the matter. Subsequent investigations by the detective force revealed the fact that a boy by the name of MELROSE, formerly employed at the store, had concocted the robbery with BASCOM. The two precocious juveniles then made a full confession, which led to the recovery of the entire property.

A JOHN BROWN sympathy meeting was held in the Cooper Institute last Thursday. The large Hall was filled with a promiscuous crowd, and the Rev. Dr. CHEEVER, WENDELL PHILLIPS and others addressed the meeting. The proceedings were very stormy, and at one time a riot seemed inevitable.—Such was the confusion that Dr. CHEEVER was obliged to cease speaking before he had half finished his address. Eventually, however, a force of seventy-five Policemen, under Capt. PILLSBURY, and the eloquence of Mr. PHILLIPS, succeeded in restoring a tolerable degree of order. The proceedings then went on quietly, and soon after 10 1-2 o'clock, the meeting adjourned.

CAPT. H. CLAY PETE, the leader of the Missouri Border Ruffians during the Kansas war, lectured in the Cooper Institute, New York, last Wednesday evening, to about one hundred persons, in abuse of JOHN BROWN. It makes one of the radical contrasts between Northern and Southern society at this moment, that while this fellow is allowed publicly to outrage public opinion at the North without molestation, any man at the South uttering opinions publicly or privately on the other side of the question, is lynched, tarred and feathered, and is lucky if he escapes with his life.

COL. S. A. CONLEY, of Hartford, was in Charlestown, Va., last week. Mr. PENFIELD, agent of Sharpe's Rifles, says the Hartford Times, was also there. Both were placed under arrest, but were treated kindly. Mr. PENFIELD showed a letter of introduction from the Secretary of War; Mr. FLOYD; Col. COOLEY protested that he was no Abolitionist. But all availed nothing, they were detained prisoners a short time, and then left the place.

THE DETROIT MYSTERY.—The Detroit Daily Advertiser and the Detroit Tribune both discredit the statement we copied from the Free Press, to the effect that Mr. J. B. CAMPAU had been murdered, robbed and his body thrown into the Detroit river. These papers insist that no satisfactory proof has yet been adduced to establish the truth of the story told by the Free Press. No traces of the missing man have yet been found.

TRAGEDY AT CLEVELAND.—The Cleveland Herald of Friday gave an account of a tragedy enacted by a man named KELLY, who split a woman's head open with a shovel, from which she will die.

PRINTERS' FESTIVAL.—The Printers of Detroit have made arrangements to celebrate the approaching Christmas by a festival and ball.

MR. HENRY SQUIRES, the favorite tenor, who delighted the Milwaukeeans last winter, is singing in Detroit.

EVIL EFFECTS OF FRIGHTENING CHILDREN.—On Friday evening, near the corner of Twelfth and State streets, a little girl who gave her name as Sarah McCarthy, saw a man coming towards her rolling a barrel.—The girl at once turned around and commenced screaming and running. She finally fell and was picked up in a state of almost insensibility. She was carried into a store, and after a little effort, she was brought to her senses. She said her mother had told her that Jumpertz would come with a barrel and carry her off if she staid out evenings, and she thought the man with the barrel was Jumpertz. She was escorted home in safety, probably to dream of Jumpertz and his barrel.—Chicago Dem.

LEAVING BARABOO.—Miss Almira B. Savage, who has been known to the people of this locality as one of the Principals of the Baraboo Seminary, and, for more than three years a leading educator in Baraboo, is, we regret to learn, about leaving for Missouri, where she intends continuing her labors in the work of educating the young. During her residence in this place, she had made a host of friends who regret her departure, without so far as we can learn, though occupying a most difficult position, having so much as a single enemy. Success attend her future labors.—Baraboo Republic.

PORK.—More pork has been sold in Baraboo this season than probably during the past five years all put together, and at railroad prices. The highest figure yet is $5,80 per hundred, paid last Tuesday. The same day three "porkers" weighing 1241 lbs. brought $5,75. Those who have pig meat to sell know where to bring it.—Baraboo Republic.

PROBABLY DROWNED.—Mr. Samuel Thomas, residing about seven miles down the Bay shore, left here on Thursday afternoon of last week, in a small canoe, to return home. The wind was blowing fresh on the Bay, and considerable sea was up. It is feared that, becoming numb with cold, he let the canoe drift out into the Bay, and is probably capsized.—Oconto Pioneer.

THE LAST SCENE OF THE TRAGEDY.

Executions at Charlestown.

Special Dispatch to the Cincinnati Gazette.

HARPER'S FERRY, Va., Dec. 16th.

CHARLESTOWN BEFORE THE EXECUTION.

The condition of things was vastly changed on my arrival yesterday, since my visit to Charlestown on the occasion of Brown's execution. People had become tired and wearied out. The soldiers were wishing that the executions were over so as to get rid of them. Cook and Coppie had been exhibiting a most unusual flow of spirits.

LAST INTERVIEWS OF THE CONDEMNED WITH THEIR FRIENDS.

Cook, since the visit of his sisters, Mrs. Crowley and Mrs. Staunton, on Tuesday last, has been very cheerful.

The meeting was a very affectionate one.—The meeting of a brother who had been lost to them for years, under such circumstances, was of a character that baffles description.—Gov. Willard was present with them, and after they had spent some hours together, they parted, with the understanding that the sisters would not leave until the next day, when they would again visit him.

After they had parted, Gov. Willard deemed it prudent that they should not meet again, and he accordingly requested the sisters to write each a letter to Cook, in which they could take their farewell of him.

As soon as the letters were written, the sisters of Gov. Willard left for the Ferry, and thence for New York. Coppie was visited by several relatives during the week, and yesterday an uncle came on to whom will be given his body.

WHY COPPIE'S SENTENCE WAS NOT COMMUTED

A great effort was made to have Coppie's sentence commuted, but the Legislature refused to give the Governor power. This result was owing to Coppie's course since his conviction, his letter to Mrs. Brown proving a great barrier to clemency.

COOK AND COPPIE'S VAIN ATTEMPT TO ESCAPE.

About 8 o'clock on Thursday evening, the two made an unsuccessful effort to escape. Running between the window and the floor in their room, was a plank three and a half inches thick and twelve inches in width.—They had loosed this plank so that they could remove it with ease, and replace it with the same facility. For several days, with the help of a barlow knife and a screw from out their bedstead, they had been employed in removing the plaster and inside brick, so that on the night of the 15th, they had nothing to do but remove the outer bricks.

At the hour named, when no guard was near and the excitement of the day was over, the bricks were removed and an arperture made sufficiently large to admit of the egress of much larger men. Cook with the use of his barlow knife, which he converted into a saw, had removed the irons from his feet. One of the links of the chain of Coppie's irons was also cut, the rings still remaining on his limbs.

To avoid the rattling sound which would attend his walking, he had tied the piece of chain, which was hanging to one of the rings, to his leg with his handkerchief. Coppie got out first, feet foremost, and allowed himself to drop a distance of 14 feet. Cook followed. The timbers of the scaffold on which Brown was hung were in the yard, and they were used for scaling the wall. Coppie ascended first, and stretched himself on the top of the wall. Cook then held his hat up over the wall to see if it would be noticed. A sentinel observed it; as he attempted to elevate himself the guard fired, but the ball missed its mark. The two prisoners then retreated into the yard and towards the jail door.—The alarm was given, and the jailor on entering the yard, seized them and reconveyed them to their room, where they were heavily ironed to the floor.

The buoyant flow of spirits which they had exhibited now sank, and they appeared greatly depressed. The slender thread upon which hung their last hope of life was broken.

In the morning, they again became cheerful. Cook humbly begged the jailor's pardon, and said he freely and fully exonerated him from all complicity. Had it not been for the military guard, they would have undoubtedly escaped. Some of the citizens censure the jailor severely, while others think that his charitable feeling towards the prisoners, was his only fault.

He undoubtedly desired that the prisoners should spend their last hours by themselves, undisturbed even by the regular jail guard. His kindness, it is feared, has been his ruin.

THE MORNING OF THE EXECUTION—ARREST OF STRANGERS.

At daylight the drums were beaten and the soldiers called to arms. In a few minutes the entire people who had been quietly slumbering after the excitement attendant upon the attempted escape, were moving to and fro. There were no guards placed on the avenues leading to the town, and the country people were flocking in from all directions. A number of persons who came to Harper's Ferry on Thursday night from Baltimore, hired vehicles and drove to Charlestown.—They were arrested on entering the place, and conveyed to the guard house; and those who could not give an account of themselves or get some citizen to vouch for them, were confined until after the execution.

At nine o'clock the streets were lined with soldiers. The road leading to the field of execution was thronged with cavalry, and the field itself presented the appearance of a regimental dress parade. All the pomp which could be suggested was used, and nothing was wanting to give effect to the scene. The streets near the jail were taken possession of by the military, and citizens were not allowed to move towards the prison.

A scaffold had been erected on the same spot which had witnessed the execution of Brown. Unlike the day of his execution, which was mild with a genial sunshine, the heavens were overcast, the air raw and bitter, and the ground covered with a slight snow.

EXECUTION OF THE NEGROES.

At twenty minutes to eleven o'clock the Commanding General, with his staff, departed for the field, and in a few minutes Green and Copeland, the negroes, with their arms pinioned, walked out of the jail. They were assisted into the wagon, and took their seats on their coffins.

The line of march was taken up, and the negroes without speaking a word, proceeded to the scaffold, which they ascended at five minutes to eleven o'clock, with an unshaking step.

Prayer was then offered by Rev. G. North. The negroes bade each other good bye, Green expressing the hope that he would meet Copeland in Heaven. The white caps were drawn down, the ropes adjusted, and at precisely eleven o'clock the trap was sprung and they were launched into eternity. They were on the scaffold only five minutes. Green died easy and with scarcely a struggle. Copeland struggled violently for some minutes, dying by strangulation, his neck having apparently not been broken by the fall. After hanging thirty minutes, they were pronounced dead, cut down, placed in their coffins, removed and buried.

THEIR BODIES DUG UP FOR DISSECTION.

They were allowed to remain in the ground but a few moments, when they were taken up and conveyed to Washington for dissection. That this bold procedure should have been allowed is strange but no interference seems to have been made.

COOK AND COPPIE.

The military returned to the jail and assumed their positions, while the Sheriff and Jailor entered the prison, and prepared the prisoners for execution: The Revs. Green, North, Waugh and Lynch were in attendance administering religious consolation. Cook and Coppie were remarkably cheerful, apparently, not even interested as much as the persons around them, in what was transpiring, and what was to transpire. While their arms were being pinioned they talked pleasantly, and walked without the slightest, tremor from the jail. On reaching the pavement, Cook recognized a face, bowed and said, "Remember me to all my friends at the Ferry."

COPPIE'S DESPAIR—SAD FEATURES OF HIS CASE.

After taking their seats in the wagon, the countenance of Coppie changed; his face wore a settled expression of despair. He looked wildly around the crowd, and his large eyes lighted up with an unnatural luster. Many a heart sighed for him. Most of the community were anxious for a commutation of his sentence, which would certainly have been granted by the Legislature had it not been for a letter which appeared in the New York Tribune, addressed to Mrs. Brown, signed by Edwin Coppie, and written after the execution of Brown. That letter sealed his fate. Coppie denied having written the letter. It was written by Cook, and signed by him for Coppie. It was not read to Coppie and written without his solicitation, and it is believed was an act of policy on the part of Cook to bind Coppie's destiny to his own. This morning, his youthful appearance, frank, open countenance, and the knowledge of the facts connected with the writing of the letter, which only transpired on yesterday, all tended to enlist sincere sympathy for the misguided boy. He, however, gave no evidence of dread. As the wagon preceded by the military, and guarded on all sides by the same, proceeded to the field, Cook recognized many acquaintances. He bowed his head to some, and spoke to others. As they entered the gate, he remarked to Coppie, "Ned we are going together." Coppie replied by bowing his head. No other word was spoken.

HANGING OF COOK AND COPPIE.

On reaching the scaffold, they ascended with firmness, and on gaining the platform Rev. Green North offered up a prayer of one minute's duration.

During this prayer, both men stood without a tremor. Coppie had his eyes closed, and his lips moved as with prayer. When the divine had finished, the doomed men bade each other farewell, and as the white cap was drawn down, Cook addressed the Sheriff with, "Now, as quick as possible." The ministers, and officers of the law, then bade them farewell, and in another instant they were in the struggles of death. Both, however, died easily. There was a slight movement of the lower part of the limbs, and all was still. Both their necks were broken. They ascended the scaffold at nineteen minutes of one o'clock, and the trap was sprung at fifteen minutes of one. They were thus only four minutes on the scaffold.

DISPOSAL OF THE BODIES.

The bodies hung for thirty minutes, when the physicians stated that life had been extinct some minutes. They were then cut down and placed in their respective coffins.—Cook's relatives had sent from New York an elegant metallic one, Coppie's was of plain, black-walnut, furnished by the Undertaker, Mr. Sadler, who conveyed the two coffins to Harper's Ferry. Cook's was delivered to Adams & Co.'s Express.

It will be conveyed to his relatives in New York at three o'clock to-morrow morning. Coppie was delivered over to his uncle Joshua Coppie, of Salem, Ohio, and Thomas Winn, of Iowa. He leaves this evening, and will bury the remains near his house.

The military surveillance having been removed, a much larger crowd of residents and strangers witnessed the execution. The throng at the gate was very great, and for a while it was impossible for the crowd to get in. The military attempted to keep out all except those they could recognize, but they found this impossible, as strangers and citizens rushed in together, and, eventually, they allowed all to pass.

At least three thousand persons witnessed the execution. The people are sick and tired of military rule. The surveillance which has been exercised by them has been of the most offensive character, and has been denounced by the citizens in a manner which admitted of no misconstruction. They denounced the regulations as foolish and tyrannical, and subversive of the rights of the people. To-day a general feeling of congratulation exists that the nuisance will soon be abated.

What are We to Do?

One day, the Republicans are fiercely charged with disloyalty to the Union, and in proof of this are cited the Disunion utterances Wendell Phillips, Loyd Garrison, Parker Pillsbury, &c., not one of whom ever gave a Republican vote, or even pretended to be a Republican, while, on the contrary, they have missed no opportunity to defame and denounce us. We explain, for the hundredth time, that we have nothing in common with the Garrisonians but our dislike of Human Slavery—that their modes of thought and action, their view of the Constitution and their remedies for existing evils, are radically diverse from ours. They denounce the Constitution and would sever the Union; we uphold the Constitution and stand by the Union. And when we are menacingly told that the South will dissolve the Union if we do not give up our hostility to Slavery Extension, we answer that we shall not dissolve the Union, and we do not mean to let others dissolve it.

"Then you threaten us do you?" blusters the Oligarchy personating the South. No, we do not threaten; we only repeal threats! When we are told that we must not vote for such a President as we like, for if we elect him the South will break up the Union, have we not a right to answer that that is easier said than done? Only look at the reason of the thing. Suppose that we should elect the next President, that by no means puts the Government unreservedly into our hands. The Senate would still be against us, and we could not pass an act without its concurrence. The Supreme Court would still be right to one against us, and could annul any unconstitutional act—or one that its party saw fit to pronounce such—that we might get through the Senate. The Army and Navy are more than ten to one against us. All the present Postmasters—an army of twenty-five thousand—are against us. If we were to choose a President next year, the preponderance of power would remain with our adversaries for months, if not for years. And yet we are told that, if we beat them next Fall, however fairly, they will break up the Union. If we were to talk thus, it would be stigmatized as treason: how comes it that the same language in the mouths of our adversaries is accounted patriotism?—New York Tribune.

NICKEL CENTS.—In the way of nickel cents the mint has lately been very prolific. No less than 3,300,000 of the new cent were coined at the mint last month. The mint receives Spanish coin in exchange for cents, at rates which afford a large gain to the former. The cents, however, are produced in such immense quantity, and so little pains are taken to push them off into the interior, where they are really wanted, that the channels of circulation are choked with them. The butchers, bakers, grocers, and retailers generally, are overrun with them. The brokers deal in them at a discount, and they are bought by persons who again circulate them among retailers. The market is thus kept glutted with cents in certain quarters, while in some districts the want of small change is much felt. That there are tricks in all trades, nobody can doubt who watches the movements of matters in general.—Philadelphia Gazette.

SHAME AND SUICIDE.—In September last, a Mrs. Osborne, of Madison, Wis., left her husband and went to St. Louis with a man named Clark; the latter in a few months abandoned her. The husband heard of her being in want and wrote her a letter offering to contribute to her relief, as he could not bear to know she was suffering for want of means. She refused the aid, and sought refuge in a den of abandoned women. On Wednesday last she received another letter from her husband, informing her that he would be in St. Louis that night, and, unwilling to meet him, she procured laudanum and took it with the intent to destroy her life. Physicians, however, were called in, who rescued her from death.—Chicago Times.

SERIOUS ACCIDENT.—On Monday night last, a German, living about three miles north of Hebron, was badly injured, while on his way home from this village. He had been here with a load of wood, and while here drank spirits of some kind to intoxication. On his way home, he either fell or was thrown from his wagon, and was found lying near the Thorne school-house, insensible, with his skull, just back of the left ear, badly fractured. He is very badly hurt, but hopes are entertained that he will finally recover. We could not learn his name.—Whitewater Reg.

FIRE AT MILFORD.—In the village of Milford, on the night of the 8th inst., a fire broke out in a dry goods store kept by N. Sumner, and consumed entirely the whole stock, causing a loss of about $3,000, on which there was an insurance in the Ætna of $2,000. Mr. Sumner had hardly time to save his life by leaping out of a window in the second story. His account books being in the same room where he slept, were also saved. The building belonged to N. S. Green, and is a total loss, without insurance. The origin of the fire is not known.—Watertown Democrat, 15th.

THE SECOND, third, fourth and fifth mortgages of the New York and Erie Company are all in process of foreclosure. The amount secured by these mortgages is about fifteen millions of dollars. The suits to foreclose the fourth and fifth mortgages were commenced last summer. The second and third mortgage suits have been commenced during the past week.

FISH are worth 2 1-2 cents per pound in Brownsville, Minnesota, and plenty at that. Some of their citizens would like to know whether it would pay to ship to Milwaukee. Will some of the Milwaukee papers tell us what fresh fish are worth?—La Crosse Rep.

PARK BENJAMIN, while passing from his house to a lecture room, recently, in West Troy, New York, fell and broke his ancle. He will thus be compelled to forego a number of lecturing engagements.

THE CITY.

The Weekly Sentinel for 1860.

In another column will be found the prospectus of the SENTINEL for 1860. The Publishers offer a Cash Premium List of one hundred and sixty dollars as an inducement to their friends and readers throughout the State to obtain new subscribers—read it!

OUR PUBLIC SCHOOLS.—The Fall term of our Public Schools closes on Friday next, and the present week will be occupied, in most of the Schools, with a review of the studies of the term and general exercises in declamation, composition, music, &c. The opportunity is a good one for parents and other citizens, interested in the cause of Popular Education, to visit the different schools and judge, for themselves, as to their general management and the improvement and proficiency of the pupils. Tax-payers, especially, who have to "foot the bills" should look in upon our Public Schools, once in a while, to see what they are doing and satisfy themselves that the money they cost is a paying investment.

The vacation for the Holidays in the Public Schools will continue till Tuesday, the 3d of January, when the Winter term commences.

UNDER THE DOG STAR.—"Bridget! Bridget! what's the matter with Fido? he's lying on the hearth rug rolling his dear little eyes balls and kicking out his hind legs dreadfully!"

"Land sakes, Marm, I don't know unless he's pizened—is he getting better, Marm?"

He did get better, in less than a minute—that is, he got over the rolling of his dear eyeballs and the kicking of his sweet little hind legs, and will never roll or kick them any more.

One policeman Sunday had the audacity to make a German hold his dog's mouth open while he (the policeman) gave him a corporation button. We were told, too, of a valuable animal of the King Charles breed that belonged to a drug merchant, being cheated out of his life, though various and potent alkalies were poured down his valued throat.

Gentlemen, wire your dogs' mouths, for there's nux vomica abroad.

MATCH AT BASE BALL.—Another well-contested match at Base Ball came off, Saturday afternoon, on the State Fair Grounds. The weather was blustering and patches of snow on the ground made it slippery and rather too damp for sharp play. The following was the score:

J. L. Hathaway	5	R. King	3
C. B. Allen	3	G. L. Granberry	3
I. P. Colwell	6	H. L. Gardner	3
F. D. Clark	6	A. C. May	4
F. J. Dosworth	6	Capt. Coote	4
W. Buck	7	D. B. Ogden	3
N. J. Emmons	5	J. B. Brown	5
H. N. Hempstead	4	W. Barclay	4
C. Steele	6	Jno. Sexton	4
Geo. Rockwell	4	J. K. Kimball	4
Total	55		33

Five innings were played on each side. J. W. LEDYARD acted as umpire.

THIRD WARD EPISCOPAL MISSION SUNDAY SCHOOL FESTIVAL.—The Annual Festival of this School will be held on Thursday evening next, D. V., at SIVYER'S new Hall, East side of Main, between Huron and Detroit streets. All friendly to the Mission are invited to attend at half past seven o'clock, and contribute by their presence and out of their abundance to aid the good work. Donations of food or other articles for the Festival may be sent to T. B. KEMP, 47 Cass street, or to the Mission Church, on Wednesday afternoon and evening, up to 9 o'clock.

"He that giveth to the poor lendeth to the Lord."

DISORDERLY BOYS IN THE THIRD WARD.—We find a communication on our table requesting us to call the attention of the Police to the fact that a number of disorderly men and boys are in the habit of frequenting the corners of Michigan and Cass and Van Buren Sts, in the Third ward, and insulting pedestrians who pass that way at night. The correspondent says that recently, while returning home from the opera with a lady, some one among a crowd of fellows on one of these corners, flung a stone—whether intentionally or not is not known—which came very near striking his companion.

GONE TO MADISON.—HARRY BINGHAM, the well-known proprietor of the Light Guard Saloon on Huron street, has gone to Madison to open a first-class restaurant through the winter. Our Madison friends will find HARRY an active, wide-awake, public-spirited man; ready to lend a hand in every good work, and thoroughly posted as to his own particular business. Members of the Legislature and others visiting Madison this winter will find BINGHAM's just the place to get a nice meal, a good cigar and other "creature comforts."

THE SLEIGHING CARNIVAL.—There is plenty of activity in town. Every one seems to have joined the dashaways. The snow is spread out in great plenty and the way cutters and dry goods boxes turn the corners is a caution to invalids and cripples. The air was just warm enough yesterday to enjoy the fun, and a general holiday took place in which old and young folks joined and everybody but editors went a sleigh riding.

FIRE SATURDAY NIGHT.—The alarm of fire about 7 o'clock Saturday evening, was occasioned by the burning of the Kinnekinnick Saloon—situated just north of the Kinnekinnick Bridge in the Fifth Ward—and an adjoining building. The buildings were small, and probably not worth over $300 or $400.

Stand from Under.—A gentleman, while passing along East Water Street yesterday, was suddenly surprised by receiving an avalanche of snow from the roof of a high building, on his head and shoulders. With the exception of a temporary loss of breath, and the annihilation of a handsome hat, he was, however, uninjured.

CALEB WALL, City Auctioneer, will have a Christmas Gift sale of Books and Jewelry every night this week, commencing at 7 o'clock—read his advertisement about it.—He also will have a great sale of damaged goods on Wednesday morning at the store room No. 155 East Water street, formerly occupied by BRADFORD BROS.

THE BALL OF LIBERTY HOSE CO.—Active preparations are being made for the Ball of this Company, which comes off to-morrow night. It will no doubt be a fine affair. We are requested to state that orders for carriages (which will be furnished free,) may be left at the office of W. H. HOLLAND, Insurance Agent, corner Main and Wisconsin streets.

CHRISTMAS AND NEW YEAR.—As these Holidays fall on Sunday, this year, the Monday following, in each week, will be devoted to the customary festive celebration. If the weather holds cool and clear, the snow of Saturday night and Sunday will ensure us good sleighing.

FIRE SATURDAY NIGHT.—The alarm of fire about 7 o'clock Saturday evening, was occasioned by the burning of the Kinnekinnick Saloon—situated just north of the Kinnekinnick Bridge in the Fifth Ward—and an adjoining building. The buildings were small, and probably not worth over $300 or $400.

Stand from Under.—A gentleman, while passing along East Water Street yesterday, was suddenly surprised by receiving an avalanche of snow from the roof of a high building, on his head and shoulders. With the exception of a temporary loss of breath, and the annihilation of a handsome hat, he was, however, uninjured.

CONCERT.—The one hundredth concert of the Musical Society will be given to-night at Albany Hall. SCHILLER'S Lay of the Bells, selections from La Gaza Ladia and speeches form a great bill of attraction.

THE RURAL ANNUAL AND HORTICULTURAL DIRECTORY FOR 1860.—The publisher of the Genesee Farmer gets out each year a handsome little volume of 120 pages, expressly designed as a hand-book for the farmer and fruit-grower. We have received the volume for 1860. It is filled to overflowing with useful and interesting information—just such matter as the farmer and gardener needs. It is illustrated with one hundred and seven beautiful pictures of fruit, evergreen and deciduous trees, insects, pigeons, &c.—The book is a gem, and would be an ornament to any farmer's library or parlor table. Among its contents we may mention, treatises on the Planting and Management of Fruit Trees; on Insects Injurious and Beneficial to Farmers and Fruit-Growers; on Dwarf Trees—including Apples, Pears, Plums, and Cherries; on the American Black Raspberry; on the Composition of Fruits, Trees, &c.; on the Management and Varieties of Pigeons; on Planting Evergreens; on the Diseases of Horses, Cattle, Sheep and Swine—Remedies, &c.; on Ornamental Deciduous Trees; Domestic Receipts, &c., &c.

We would advise every one of our readers, interested in the culture of the soil or the improvement of the country, to send for a copy. Price only twenty-five cents. The publisher will send it, prepaid by return mail, on the receipt of twenty-five cents in three cent postage stamps. Address JOSEPH HARRIS, publisher Genesee Farmer, Rochester, N. Y.

WHERE TO GET YOUR CUTLERY.—GOODRICH & JOHNSON have just received a large assortment of Cutlery of the latest and most elegant style, very suitable for holiday presents. They have also a very superior stock of plated ware, quite equal, if not superior, to any we have seen this season, comprising knives, forks, spoons, castors, tea pots, and an almost endless variety of household necessaries. By looking over their goods you will be convinced of their superiority.

LECTURE.—The Rev. C. L. LE FEVRE will deliver a Lecture on the Discovery of America by the Northmen, before the Franklin Lyceum, in their Hall, on Sunday, Dec. 28, at 8 P. M.

The proceeds to be appropriated to the enlargement of the Library.

A VALUABLE GIFT FOR THE HOLIDAYS.—The "Battle Ground Cooking Stove" is not only useful but beautiful and economical. They all have the condensing gridiron attached. You cannot purchase anything for a Christmas present that will please the good wife like this; and it will ensure you a good dinner for all time to come. They will also save enough wood in two years to pay for themselves. Also a splendid assortment of Parlor and Cook Stoves, Fairbank's Family Scales, &c., for sale at 89 and 91 East Water street. dec15d6t L. BONNELL.

NEW PUBLICATIONS.—The tale of Two Cities by CHARLES DICKENS; Nic Nax for January; Godey's Magazine for January.—All the Christmas pictorials are also on hand. You can subscribe for Godey's on the most reasonable terms at GREAT SALE OF HOTEL FURNITURE AT AUCTION IN CHICAGO.

I SHALL, ON THE 28TH OF DECEMBER, A. D. 1859, offer for sale, at public auction, in the rooms of Mellen's Block, corner of Michigan Avenue and South Water Streets, in the City of Chicago, the entire furniture of a first class hotel, lately used as such, which is in excellent condition and consists of one seven octave rosewood piano, beds, bedsteads, mattresses, parlor and chamber furniture, curtains, crockery and glass ware, and in fact every description of property used in a hotel. Plenty of time will be given and terms of sale every kind. The sale is upon a chattel mortgage and by virtue of a decree of Court, and will be positive. This is a rare opportunity to afford Hotel and Housekeepers an excellent opportunity to furnish their establishments. The sale will commence at 9 o'clock A. M. and continued from day to day until all is sold.

TELEGRAPH!

REPORTED BY THE N. Y. ASSOCIATED PRESS FOR THE DAILY SENTINEL.

Congressional Proceedings.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 19.—9 P. M.

HOUSE.—Mr. Singleton, of Miss., in replying to Mr. Hickman, emphatically denied the latter's charge that the South had violated all compacts and compromises. Where and when had the South demanded anything more than she was entitled to under the Constitution? Whenever aggressions had been made they were by the stronger on the weaker section, and the South was obliged to take her present stand, with a view to preserve fraternal relations.

Mr. Hickman, of Pa., said he would reply by asking a question.

Mr. Singleton remarked that that was a Yankee way he did not like.

Mr. H. said that if he understood the history of the Legislature in 1850, there was a demand made from the South that the Missouri Compromise should be repealed, inasmuch as it prevented slavery North of 36 degrees and 30 minutes, and was unjust to the South, which went almost in a body for its repeal, and with the aid of a few

THE SENTINEL.

DAILY, TRI-WEEKLY & WEEKLY.

RUFUS KING, EDITOR.

TUESDAY MORNING, DEC. 20, 1859.

Two Weeks Wasted.

Congress have used up the first two weeks of the session in a useless and irritating "sectional" debate, got up by the Democrats for party purposes. The Republicans, as a general rule, have abstained from talking and contented themselves with voting steadily to organize the House without further delay, and proceed with the public business. Not having quite a majority of the whole House, they have, as yet, been unsuccessful in this effort; but the consummation cannot be prevented much longer. The public creditors are clamorous, the Administration awfully in need of money, and legislation, on several subjects, urgently demanded. The Republicans, therefore, have only to stand firm and stick to their man, and the election of Mr. SHERMAN must soon be accomplished. The only objection urged against him—that he believes in and endorses the Anti-Slavery arguments of "Helper's Crisis"—is too absurd and untenable to cost him a single vote. We hope to record his election to the Speakership before the close of another week.

The Disunion Democracy.

The Democrats in Congress continue to repeat their threats of DISUNION and SECESSION. Some of them are doubtless sincere in what they say, but the majority indulge in this sort of talk for political effect. They hope to scare the weak-kneed Republicans from standing up manfully for their principles. In this expectation they will find themselves mistaken. The Republicans in the House are united, firm and true. They will not compromise their principles nor surrender their candidate; but will adhere to both to the last.

The reader's attention is invited to the contrast in the tone of the Republican and Democratic members, who have thus far taken part in the debate. One of the speakers, on Thursday last, was MR. CRAWFORD, a Democratic Representative from Georgia.

He made a rank disunion speech, declaring that Slavery must inevitably break up this union; and said it was folly to talk of settling or compromising this question. "The only issue now," said Mr. CRAWFORD, is "slavery and disunion, or no slavery and union."

He thought JOHN BROWN's Virginia riot would prevent the election of a Republican President in 1860. He said if Mr. BEECHER should go into the South to preach, they would hang him higher than Haman. He spoke the sentiments, he said, of every Democratic member from Georgia, when he declared that they would never submit to the inauguration of a Black Republican President. For himself he was for secession immediately.

This violent sectional harangue of Mr. CRAWFORD's met, as it deserved, applause from the Democratic benches. Indeed, his declaration that the South would never submit to the inauguration of a Republican President, is but a repitition of what other Southern Democrats have said before him. Let the People note these treasonable sentiments and the quarter from which they come. Let them mark, too, the fact that neither the Democratic leaders, nor the Democratic papers at the North, have a word of censure for these disunion speeches. If they do not openly approve, they tacitly acquiesce in the opinions expressed and threats made by the Disunion and Secession Democrats of the South.

THE SUCCESS OF LIEUT. GEN. SCOTT.—This distinguished military chieftain has reaped new honors from his mission to San Juan, and has returned from his long and toilsome journey in perfect health and vigor, his advanced age notwithstanding. It is rarely that the same talent for negotiation and diplomacy that he exhibits are found in combination, with military skill and renown. The estimation in which Gen. SCOTT is held at home is shown in the fact, that for any difficult mission the Administration, of whatever party, invariably turns to him for counsel and, aid, and the high reputation he has acquired abroad was shown in the change of tone in the press of England immediately consequent upon his selection by our government as its representative at the scene of difficulty. His success as a pacificator was universally anticipated, and it has been achieved, not by the surrender of one jot or tittle of American rights, but by uprightness and sound judgment.

THE LIABILITY OF STEAMBOAT PROPRIETORS AS COMMON CARRIERS.—Mr. B. F. MUDGETT recently brought an action in the city of New York against the Bay State Steamboat Company, for the recovery of the value of a valise which was stolen from his stateroom on board the Metropolis, while he was on his way to Boston. He left his state-room in the evening, locking the door of the apartment and putting the key in his pocket.—While he was absent the room was entered and his valise stolen. Defendants proved that the plaintiff was aware that there was a baggage-master on board the boat who received trunks and valises, and who gave checks for their safe delivery. Judge STEWART, before whom the case was tried, charged that the defendants were responsible, the plaintiff not being obliged to leave the valise with the baggage-master, as it contained articles of wearing apparel only. Judgment was rendered in favor of the plaintiff.

This settles the question, also, that passengers are not bound to pay the servants on steamboats, besides paying regular fare, in order to hold proprietors liable for a loss of their baggage by inference.

RUMORED RESIGNATION—DOUGLAS STILL UNDER BAN.—A Washington despatch of the 15th inst, to New York papers, mentions a report that Senator HAMMOND, of South Carolina, is about to resign, his health not permitting his attendance at Washington. The same despatch states that at the caucus of Democratic Senators, that morning, to arrange the Standing Committees, Senator TOOMBS urged that Senator DOUGLAS should be restored to the chairmanship of the Committee on Territories, from which post he was removed by the Democrats of the Senate, two years ago, because he favored "Squatter Sovereignty." No one, however, seconded the proposition of Mr. TOOMBS, and it consequently did not prevail.

APPOINTMENTS BY THE PRESIDENT.—The President has nominated and the Senate has confirmed Hon. AMASA J. PARKER, of Albany, as United States District Attorney for the Southern District of New York. Mr. PARKER has been Justice of the Supreme Court in the Third District, and has twice been the Democratic candidate for Governor. He is rather of the "Hard" order of Democracy, and was not altogether the candidate of Tammany.—Mr. JOHN VAN BUREN was pressed for the vacancy, but failed to pass.

THE COURSE OF SOUTH CAROLINA.—The The Charleston Mercury recommends to the Legislature of South Carolina the following course of action:

1. To arm the State.
2. To decline any caucus or convention with any Northern State.
3. To vote for no candidate for the Presidency or Vice Presidency, who does not distinctly support the rights of the South.

DISTRESSING CALAMITY AT TROY, N. Y.—On Monday last Mrs. EDMUND SCHRIVER, daughter of the late NATHAN WARREN, was instantly killed, while attempting to jump from a sleigh, the horses having taken fright. The sad event caused a profound sensation throughout the city.

The annual meeting of the Stockholders of the New York Central Railroad, for the election of Directors, was held at Albany on the 14th. The following Directors were chosen, being the same as last year:

FOR INSPECTORS OF ELECTION.

Henry H. Martin, Albany, George Dexter, Albany, Rufus G. Beardslee, New York.

The Annual Report of the Company for the year ending September 30, 1859, as made pursuant to law to the State Engineer, was at the same time distributed among the stockholders. We extract from it some items of general interest.

The Capital Stock of the Company is $24,000,000—having been reduced $182,400 during the last year by extinguishing that amount of stock of the Lewiston Railroad Company.

The Funded debt is $14,333,771.21—being a reduction since the last report of $70,996.77.

The aggregate stock and debt of the Company is now $38,333,771.21.

The total cost of the road and its equipment stands at $30,840,713.71.

At a subsequent meeting of the Directors ERASTUS CORNING was unanimously re-elected President, and DEAN RICHMOND Vice President of the Company.

The following standing committees were appointed:

Executive Committee.—Messrs. Corning, Richmond, Schoolcraft, Paige and Chedell.

Committee on Accounts.—Messrs. Townsend, Spraker and Tracy.

The Board declared a dividend of three per cent. for the six months which will expire on the 31st of January next.

RELIEF FOR THE ISRAELITES OF MOROCCO.—Efforts are being made to obtain relief for the Jews of Morocco, who, to the number of about three thousand, have fled from that country in fear of an impending war between Spain and Morocco, and taken refuge under the British flag at Gibraltar. Here they are in circumstances of extreme destitution and in need of immediate relief. The Board of Deputies of British Jews have made the following statement:

"That this Board learns with the deepest feelings of commiseration and grief that, owing to the war which it is expected will ensue between Spain and Morocco, the Jewish inhabitants of Tangier, fearing the repetition of the brutal usage which they experienced when the wild Kabyle tribes came down to the coast in 1844, have fled from their homes in a state of utter destitution.

"Nearly 2,700 of these unhappy persons have arrived from Tangier at Gibraltar; and it is but too probable they will be followed by many thousand others, from other parts of Morocco.

"A local committee of the Jewish residents at Gibraltar has been formed, to relieve, as far as practicable, this vast amount of destitution, and their efforts are being generously aided by the Christian community of that town. Still, at the date of the last advices, very many of the sufferers, including young women and children, had no resting place except the bare ground; and it is quite impossible that the exertions of the benevolent, confined to the locality, can avail to any extent in alleviating such overwhelming want."

"Under these melancholy circumstances, this Board has formed itself into a committee of relief, with power to add to its number; and have made appeals to its co-religionists, not only in this country, but throughout Europe and other parts of the world, for the earliest practicable assistance. Nor can it venture, in a case so unprecedented as this, to deny itself the aid of benevolent communities and persons, without distinction of creed, whose philanthropy may induce them to proffer assistance."

The Board have delegated to Rev. S. M. Isaacs, 694 Houston street, New York, the task of receiving such contributions as may be made, and which will be at once forwarded to Gibraltar for the sufferers.

A LADY describing an ill-tempered man, says, "he never smiles but he feels ashamed of it."

Parties and the Presidency.

Correspondence of the Cincinnati Gazette.

WASHINGTON, Dec, 13, 1859.

POSITION OF PARTIES—THE REPUBLICANS.

The world does move. The political firmament is greatly changed, even since the adjournment of the last Congress. My faith in the Republican party as a distinctive organization, and as the one destined to give peace and quiet to the country, has been greatly strengthened, in watching the movements thus far, of the present Congress. The bearing of the Republican representatives has been such as to deserve the admiration of the country. Loyal, conservative, opposed to needless agitation, intent upon going directly about the business for which their constituents sent them here, and leaving irrelevent and ill-timed talking to be almost all done by their opponents, they are steadily gaining, beyond a doubt, upon the affections of the people throughout the land. It cannot be otherwise. A nobler, and a braver set of men, at the same time forbearing and calm in their conscious strength, has rarely if ever assembled at the Capitol since the early days of the Republic. They are united, firm, true.

THE ADMINISTRATION DEMOCRACY.

The members who sit on the Administration side of the House are evidently beginning to have some just sense of their own ruinous, if not absolutely ruined condition. Never before were they met by such a formidable phalanx, completely united in opposition to the aggressive policy which, by dint of impudent bullying, aided by obsequious flunkeyism in the North, has Litherto been forced through Congress, whenever the demand was made. Now, this defiant party of fire-eaters knows its days to be numbered. It sees plainly the hand-writings on the wall.—It feels, for the first time, a tremor in the knees. Its very ferocity—rampant at the opening of the session, but now greatly tamed, by merely looking in the faces of those on "the left"—is that of despair and a consciousness of impending defeat. In their own ranks, it is already manifest, there is little coherence. Organize the House, and an irrepressible conflict in the bowels of the Democracy will be apparent at once. They will to accusing each other for the downfall that has come upon them.

DEMOCRACY DEAD—THE SOUTHERN AND ANTI-LECOMPTON OPPOSITION.

The end of Democratic sway is indeed close at hand. Any one who has closely observed the House, in person, for the last week, can have no reasonable doubt on that head. The Republicans, delayed and thwarted though they are for the moment, show clearly their consciousness that they are the party of the future. The Southern Opposition see it.—Only fear of misapprehension, not actual aversion, misunderstanding, or distrust, in my judgment, prevents their open affiliation at once with conservative Republicanism, against the Administration. They see in the Republicans the power that is to control this Government, after the 4th of March, 1861.—They will cordially acquiesce in, and ultimately sustain the coming Administration.—The honest Anti-Lecompton Democrats—not the tricksters and trimmers, like John G. Davis, whose end is perdition, but the brave and eloquent Hickman and Haskin, resolute and fearless as the lamented Broderick, and Clarke, Reynolds, Schwartz, and their hundreds of thousands of sympathizers among the masses—will straightway find their home in the Republican quarter. There is no other place for them. They will help to shape the mature and well-considered policy of this great triumphant party of 1860. All the debates in the House, every political movement, inside, or out, have of late tended directly and inevitably to this result.

REPUBLICANS FOR THE UNION—DEMOCRATS DISUNIONISTS.

From the very start, Democracy in the House has placed itself defiantly on the side of Secession and Disunion. Many of, man of the choices among the Representatives lately a Democratic, have declared their determination to resist even to blood, the installation of Republican President, constitutionally elected, and without waiting for any overt acts injurious to "Southern rights." On the smallest occasion, these leading men, who have stood in the house of Democracy, and lead it whithersoever they will, declare their preference for dissolution. Ostensentatiously, they have proclaimed it day by day.

By a policy, consummate in skill and already effectually triumphant in its operation, the Republicans have suffered this talk to go on, with only here and there an occasional rebuke, from venerable statesmen like Mr. Corwin. They have planted themselves, fairly and distinctly, along with Nelson of Tennessee, so far as this question is concerned, on conservative, Union ground. The Disunion Democracy has gone on lashing itself into fury, with scarcely a rebuke in any Democratic quarter. Poor Cox made one feeble protest against the Disunion harangues of these leaders whom he, nevertheless, most meekly follows, and joins in their mad attempts to override the free North. A Missourian, yesterday, (Mr. Noel) ventured most mildly to dissent from this universal strain of latter-day Democracy, but he speedily found himself in hot water, and was seduced, by the assaults of his own political friends, to straits for which, in his inexperience, he was poorly prepared. Democracy delights in no talk now like that of Disunion. It has boldly assumed that position before the country, and the Opposition are the sole Union party.

THIS DEMOCRATIC BLUNDER A FATAL ONE.

Democrats have caught only themselves, by their deep-laid device. They began talking disunion for effect. They emulated each other in their Secession zeal. They had no patriotic leader who dared resist the current. What they began for effect, they must keep up for consistency. Some of them see the error, but too late. They have learned that the North will no longer be intimidated, and they will presently learn that their doctrines are equally a stench in the nostrils of the South. Disunion and Secession have ceased to be powerful words to conjure with. The North is in earnest, and the determined band of Republicans daily look these ranting Democrats in the face, with an expression of the coolest indifference.

Never was a worse mistake made, than that of dragooning such men into submission, according to the astute scheme of Buchanan and his leaders, by this Disunion cry. They are already beginning to find it as fatal as a Nessus's shirt. It puts the Southern Opposition in attitude of strength at the South.—It utterly paralyzes the remnant of Democratic strength at the North. It gives to the Republican party, if they exercise prudence and moderation, an easy victory in 1860.

More University Honors—Seward, Giddings and Phillips Burned in Effigy.

The students of Roanoke College, at Salem, Va., held a meeting last week and passed the following resolutions:

Forasmuch, as the sacred soil of Virginia has been invaded, her citizens incarcerated and innocent blood shed by a band of monomaniac fanatics, instigated to the desperate deed by individuals beyond the reach of law and justice, therefore,

Resolved, 1st, That we, the students of Roanoke College, under the protection of the laws of Virginia, do express our sentiments towards Wm. H. Seward, Joshua R. Giddings and Wendell Phillips, by casting upon them the infamous stigma of burning them in effigy.

Resolved, 2d, That we fire a cannon as each image is consumed by the flames, and give three cheers for our intrepid, indefatigable Governor, Henry A. Wise.

After which, the usual supplementary proceedings were had, and recorded in the following exuberant and rhetorical terms:

DECEMBER 3, 6 o'clock P. M.—The Students assembled in the hall, formed a torch-light procession, accompanied with martial music and one piece of cannon, and proceeded to march through the village, when they were joined by a number of citizens who crowded along the side-walks cheering with stentorian voices. The procession was everywhere saluted by the patriotic cheers and gleesome laugh of the fair daughters of a State where flourished and faded a Washington. The colored population hailed the occasion as a jubilee, and heaped bitter execrations upon those persons who, under the avowed garb of deliverance, rivet more tightly their chains of slavery. Permission being given by the authorities to fire cannon within the corporation, the effigies of Seward, Giddings and Phillips were successively burnt, with an interval of five minutes each, and, as the lambent flame flickered upon the dying ashes of each, the heavy report of the cannon accompanied by deafening shouts of the multitude declared the heart-felt odium justly heaped upon these infamous wretches, who have proven themselves a scourge to the nation, a disgrace to humanity, and, leagued with the infernal powers, have, with sacrilegious hands disclaimed, dishonored, and profaned the patriotic life-blood of our fathers sacrificed upon the altar of Liberty.

Shade of Quintilian, defend us! These chivalrous sprouts of the Old Dominion appear to be gifted with a double portion of Gov. Wise's spirit. Query—How much does "the State where flourished and faded a Washington" advance the standard of civilization and intelligence by such proceedings?

"AH, CHARLEY," said one little fellow to another, "we are going to have a cupola on our house." "Pooh! that's nothing," rejoined the other, "Pa's going to get a mortgage on ours."

"Amongst all my boys," said an old man, "I never had but one boy who took after me, and that was my son Aaron—he took after me with a club."

Christmas is coming, and it is feared that it will lead to complications in the affairs of Turkey.

Beauty on Skates.

When we were boys, the nearest skating pond was on Stuvesant's Meadows, which then laid east of the Third avenue, and spread away from Eighth street to the river. Next to these, but farther out, was Cato's pond, nearly up to the old shot-tower. These were fine large skating ponds in our eyes, but so terribly far away, that we made our preparations for going to them as if for a serious journey. Our pet place, however, was smaller, but handier. It was a pond at the corner of Thirteenth street and Broadway, nearly a square large. A block and pump maker's shanty, built on piles, stood in one edge of it. Why it was built there, we have, in youth, often endeavored to imagine, and after much patience in philosophising, came to the conclusion that it was for convenience, and to try whether his pumps would draw water before he sent them away to be put down in the old-fashioned wells at the street corners.

This generation, it seems, is to have the advantage of us old fogies in everything—skating and skating-ponds not excepted.—The pond in the Central Park is practically finished and ready. The superintendent announced his intention of letting the water in on Thursday; and if the condition of our nose and toes, on exposure to the atmosphere of yesterday and the day before, were any just criterion, the water had a jolly good freezing time of it. The pond is about twenty acres large, and admirably planned for comfort of situation and adaption to its purpose. Wherefore, let young New York rejoice and be merry.

The coming holidays have an additional gift in store—a jovial skate. Instead of trudging away on foot for miles, as their fathers had to do get at the skating place, the youth of the present day have but to step into one of the avenue cars and bowl off to the Central Park, strap their skates and cut capriciues till their young legs have had enough of it, and the fireside and Christmas turkey own charms superior even to the brisk fun of skating.

But don't let us leave it to those merry scamps of boys altogether. Let the girls mount the swift skate also. It is just as healthy for them; and what a charming thing it will be to see five hundred cherry-cheeked, healthy beauties—goddesses in crinoline and mortals in plumptitudinous loveliness—gliding, whirling, and now and then sitting down, without exactly intending it, on the slippery ice. Let the ladies patronize the Central Park skating pond. They can make themselves adorable enough in Polish skating costume to drive all the men and boys in N. Y. mad as March hares. Let them remember, too, that the police arrangements for order, propriety and comfort at the pond are perfect, and a lady can enjoy herself there with as absolute comfort as at the opera.

Near the observatory, a tall signal pole is to be put up. The raising on it of a large red ball will be the telegraphic sign that the pond is all right. When the signal is not up, it will mean, "no skating to-day." We distinctly consider the new skating pond a grand institution, and not amongst the least of the Central Park blessings. But the women must make a grand dash at it, and make it fashionable. New York is famous for the loveliness of its women. We have beauty everywhere—in the theater, at the opera, the churches, in ball-rooms, among the Fifth Avenoodles a little, and among honest, plain-living folks a great deal. Now let us have beauty in a new scene of triumph—beauty on skates.—N. Y. Sunday Times.

PILES! PILES!! PILES!!!
What is it? How Cured?

THOUSANDS OF PERSONS HAVE PILES—suffer for years with the disease—yet few know what it is, or how it is cured. Every case of Piles, whether manifested in the form of external tumors, frequent bleeding, or in violent itching and irritation, depends essentially upon congestion of the abdominal venous circulation. This produces the engorgement dilation of the veins, formation of tumors, hemorrhages, pain and suffering; and the disease can only be fundamentally cured by medicines which, taken internally, relieve this abdominal venous congestion. Hence, ointments, washes, and even injections, are ineffectual. HUMPHREYS' HOMŒOPATHIC PILE SPECIFIC, a simple sugar pill, taken two or three times per day, cures the disease by curing the condition upon which the disease depends. Hundreds have been cured by it, even of the most obstinate cases. All will be promptly benefitted by it. Price 50 cents a box.

N. B.—A full set of HUMPHREYS' HOMŒOPATHIC SPECIFICS, with Book of Directions, and twenty remedies, in large 3-drachm vials, and morocco case, $5; do, in plain case, $4. Family case of fifteen boxes and book, $2.

These remedies, by the single box or case, are sent by mail or express, free of charge, to any address, on receipt of the price. Address,

MY STEP-MOTHER.

I have but faint recollections of my mother, as she died before I was four years old, leaving my brother Clifton—five years my senior—and myself to the care of an old woman who was much attached to her, and who gladly consented to leave her lonely cottage in the village, that she might be my father's housekeeper, and our half nurse, half governess.

We called her Granny; and very kind she was to us in her way; nursing us most tenderly when we were sick, preparing little delicacies for us at odd times, joining us in our plays, and telling us stories by the dozen of ghosts, giants, fairies, and little boys who were eaten up by wolves and bears, for being naughty.

I was a puny, sickly boy, so I did not go to school, but with Granny's aid, learned to read and write, and she prophesied that I would make a great man some day, if I would only have spirit enough, and hold up my head. All this I firmly believed, and tried my best to follow her advice.

Of my father we saw very little. He was a grave, stern man; and, very much depressed by my mother's death, he plunged into an absorbing business, and was only at home in the evenings, when we boys generally forsook the silent sitting room for the kitchen, there to listen with open eyes and mouths, to Granny's marvellous tales.

We lived quietly together, having few interests beyond our small place of ten or a dozen acres, and an occasional excursion to the neighboring town. But a change was coming. It was in the November of the year when I was nine years old and Clifton fourteen—the latter exulting in the idea of going to boarding school in a month, and I half crying beforehand over my own loneliness—that my father, who had been in the habit lately of spending a greater part of his time in Philadelphia, held a long conversation with Granny. When this was ended, we heard the front door slam, and saw our father, portmanteau in hand, jump into the wagon, and drive furiously off. While Granny entered our sitting-room, her apron to her eyes, and sat down in the arm-chair, rocking to and fro, and sobbing with uncontrolable grief. Fearing, we knew not what, we clung to her side, begging her to tell us what had happened.—But it was some time before she could speak to say that my father had told her her services would be no longer necessary, as in a week he would bring home a wife, a young lady from the city, and in the meantime he should not be at home.

"That I should ever have lived to see the day," continued the old woman, with a fresh burst of grief, "when my own dear Miss Sarah should be so forgotten and cast aside for a pretty-faced chit of seventeen, with city airs and graces, to turn the house upside down, and lord it over her darlings. Poor boys, poor boys, what will become of you?"

How much longer she might have gone on in this way, I cannot tell; but she was just then called away to the kitchen, leaving us in a state of indescribable terror, imagining that all the cruel step-mothers in fairy tales were to be united in ours. Then a long conversation ensued, in which we debated whether she would attempt to beat us, or turn us out of doors to seek our fortune with a piece of dry bread, and a bottle of sour wine. I remember perfectly the picture I formed of her, in which she figured as a large, stout woman, with a haughty air and loud voice, who would fly about the house, changing everything, and making every one unhappy generally.

"I'll tell you what," said Clifton, drawing a long breath, and plunging his hands manfully into his pockets, "I'll tell you what, Harry, when that woman comes to take mother's place, we must just get up our spunk and show her that we won't be tyrannized over; and if she goes to work to make us drudge and slave, we must show her whether she isn't mistaken in her notions—there now!"

I fully concurred in my brother's opinion. Old Granny, far from trying to subdue these feelings, rather encouraged them by her undisguised pity and regret; so that, short as was the time, we were fully prepared—not only to thwart and in every possible way disobey—but absolutely to hate the young creature who was so soon to take upon herself that vow which would make her our mother.

At length the day arrived. Granny, with streaming eyes went round the house, putting the finishing touches to the preparations, and wiping off imaginary dust from the furniture; for, she said, the new mistress would find it in as much order as her own dear mistress Sarah had always kept it, even if it should never be so again. She said she would not stay to see a stranger at the head of her mistress' table. So when the rockaway went to the depot she drove away.

Clifton felt too manly to cry, and so tried to whistle, but the sound would not come; so he stopped, put his hands in his pockets, and looked out of the window. I tried to emulate his composure, to dash back the tears that kept blinding my eyes, and to swallow down the lump that kept rising in my throat and choking me; thus we both sat silent in the recess of the window, looking out into the November mist.

It had been a very dreary day. The wind—moaning as only a November wind can—had drifted piles of dead leaves to and fro, for the rain to patter carelessly upon. But now, as the night shut in, the wind had lulled to a calm, and the rain ceased to fall, and a thick mist enshrouded everything. It seems to penetrate our very souls as we sat there, looking into the gathering darkness. The sitting-room looked very bright in contrast. The blazing wood fire cast a warm glow over the old mahogany furniture, making the silver candlesticks which stood on the little round table, in front of the chimney, sparkle brilliantly, and resting lovingly, as I thought, on my mother's arm chair that stood on the opposite side of the fire-place. My feelings did not agree with its cheerfulness, and I turned to the window again.

Now we plainly heard wheels upon the road. Clifton straightened himself, and looked rigidly at the broken branch of the linden tree. The sound came nearer, then stopped, we knew, at the gate, then, after a moment, commenced again, and the carriage drove up to the door. I saw my father hand a lady out, wrapped in cloak and furs, then they came into the house, and I heard the hall door shut, and the sitting-room door open—but would not look around, but gazed steadily into the mist. I heard my father talking to her. His voice was different from what I had ever heard it before, so deep and tender; and hers, when she answered, was so soft and gentle, that it startled me into half turning round; but the evil spirit conquered, for the November mist was darkening my heart.

She must have looked a question, for I heard my father say—

"Well, Edith, what is it?"

"The boys, Malcomb, our boys; may I not see them now?"

"Yes, certainly,"—his tone had a sort of vexation in it—"they ought to have been here to welcome you; it is very wrong, but they must be somewhere near; I will find them and bring them to you."

The door closed after him, and now being sure that we could not be seen, concealed as we were by the window curtains, I turned around a little so as to see her. There sat my step-mother in my mother's chair, the red firelight playing upon the young, sweet face, which had a shade of gravity, almost sadness about it. I can see it now. Years have passed, but I cannot forget that picture. I know now that I never shall. With two other scenes it will be painted in never fading colors before my eyes, till they close in death.

She was wondrously beautiful. Tall, and perfectly graceful, with the tiniest hands and feet I ever saw, and a small, well-formed head with soft brown curls loop'd back from her forehead. The dark maroon-colored merino that she wore, relieved only by plain white collar and cuffs, heightened the transparency of the delicate complexion. Her eyes were large and grey, with long lashes—moistened, I fancied, by a tear. It may have been. The face was almost childish in its perfect simplicity and purity; but still there was determination in the setting of the mouth and womanly dignity in the open brow; and withal a holy light seemed to beam upon her countenance—a calm and holy light, as tho' it might be the reflection from the wing of her guardian angel, for it seemed not of earth.

She sat a little forward on her chair, one hand resting on its crimson arm, the other playing with the folds of her dress, looking earnestly into the fire. The forked flames leaped up brightly and then sank, the glowing embers faded into dull ashes. Did she think—that young wife, only a few hours a bride—did she think that that life which opened so brightly to her now, when she had just crossed its threshhold, was to leap upward, warming our hearts for a little while and then leaving them cold and dark forever?

How much longer I might have gazed at her I do not know, but Clifton, who had started up, strode across the floor, dragging me after him, to her side, then, in a low awkward, abrupt tone, he said:

"I am Clifton, madam. I'm glad to see you."

I had never before seen my brother—who was rather celebrated for cool effrontery—so terribly embarrassed.

I cannot find them anywhere. Oh! you are here, are you! Where have you been hiding, sirs? Clifton, Harold, come and speak to your mother. What does this mean, sir?" he added, putting his hand heavily upon my shoulder; for I had shrunk back, frightened by his angry look, and thinking how soon Granny's prophecy seemed coming true, that our father would not love us any more when he had a new life. He raised his hand—it had never been lifted upon me before—but in a moment my stepmother had sprung up with a frightened cry. "Malcolm!" And she was between me and the blow. His hand dropped at his side; the stern look passed in a moment from his features.

"There, Edith, take him; you will find him a sad, naughty boy, I'm afraid, but he will be better with you. I have neglected them sadly of late."

She sat down again, and still keeping her arm around me, as it had been raised to shield me and drew me towards her, and then holding both my hands in hers, looked up in my face.

"And this is Harold, my youngest," she said, affectionately, smoothing back the hair from my forehead, and pressing a soft warm kiss there. "He has your forehead and eyes, Malcolm, hasn't he? and he must be my pet, for Clifton is so tall and manly that he will not like that name."

That individual stood with his back to the table, growing redder every moment, until, in pity for his confusion, she turned to me and said in a low voice—

"We will know and love each other better, soon, Herald."

ADVANCE IN THE RATES OF EXCHANGE AT CHICAGO.—The influx of Currency at Chicago continues, and with the declining demand Exchange went up to 1¾ premium on Saturday. The Press & Tribune says that "the market generally is working comfortably, though the rise in the price of Exchange will not please our merchants and the business public. Those who bought in anticipation of a rise will congratulate themselves on their good fortune and foresight.

CHICAGO, DECEMBER 17TH.—Receipts: 528 bbls flour, 8,721 bus wheat 779 bus oats.

The flour market is quiet and unchanged, with limited sales at $4,50@4,75 for fair to choice spring extra, and $3,75 for spring super. Wheat was in better demand and advanced 1c—No. 1 selling at 98@99c in store, and No. 2 spring at 90@91½c in store. Corn 1c lower—sales of No. 1 being made at 42@43c in store, closing at the inside quotation. Oats were also easier, and show a decline of 1c—No. 1 selling at 30c on track and 30½c delivered at cars. Rye quiet. Barley steady. Highwines, 22c.—Press & Tribune.

PORK AND PROVISION TRADE.

Having a good supply on hand, and in the absence of advices from the East, pork packers were loth to purchase to any extent to day, and the market for dressed hogs was therefore extremely dull and heavy. A few small lots were sold at $5@5,50 dividing on 200 pounds and one or two large transactions were also spoken of, the terms of which did not transpire. Receipts to-day were 1,261 head, swelling the total for the season to 38,682.

CINCINNATI PORK MARKET.—The Cincinnati Gazette of Saturday has the following report of Friday's market for hogs and provisions:

There was a more steady feeling in the hog market to-day, under comparatively light arrivals, the receipts for the 24 hours being only 9,000 head. There was no advance in prices, but packers took hold pretty freely at the asking rates of yesterday. The improvement in the demand for medium hogs was particularly noticeable. Many parties who have heretofore been paying, virtually, a premium for 200 lbs, with a view of making these pors, are now giving attention to bacon pork. Lots averaging 160 to 180 lbs., well fatted, were taken freely at $5 50@5 60; lighter averages sold at $5 35@5 40, and heavy—say 200 lbs.—at $5; the market closing strong, but with no indications of an advance, except in the event of a farther falling off in receipts. The total receipts to date are about 290,000 head. In provisions there was also a better feeling. Mess pork was taken up quickly, early in the day, at $16 50—and at the close there were buyers at $16 75—holders asking $16. For forward delivery there were no sellers under $17. There were more buyers than sellers for bulk meats for February, at 6½@6¾. Green meats were in fair request at 7½, 6¾ and 7½c for shoulders, sides and hams. There was a good demand for barrel lard at 9¾@, but sellers mostly advanced their views again to 10c. Some lots of new meats were also sold, for next week and the week following, at 10@12½c. The first of the season will be out of smoke next week.—Holders of flour are very firm, and sell only when pinched for money. The demand is moderate at $5 90@5 40 for superfine, and $5 50@5 75 for extra.

CHICAGO PORK MARKET.—The Chicago Tribune thus reports the hog market on Saturday:

The receipts of hogs, live and dressed, to-day, amount to 15,000, and of the market we may describe, even duller than yesterday. The demand for dressed hogs was very limited—shippers being afraid of the mildness of the weather—and the market ranged 5@10c lower than yesterday on light hogs. There were scarcely lots of extra sold at $5 75 @5 90@5 for those over 200 lbs, and $4 70@5 25 for those under 200 lbs, as follows:

16 hogs averaging 210 lbs, at		$5 80

48	"	4 70@5 00@5 50	"	180 and 200 lb

Live hogs were also about 10c lower—the sales ranging from $4,25@4,45 for light to fair, and $4,70@5,25 for heavy—the latter for choice to extra averaging 235 lbs.

The provision market is very dull, except for green meats, which are in fair request, with sales of hams at 7½c and shoulders at 5¾c. In mess pork, we report a sale of 100 bbls, country packed at $14—city being offered at $14 75@15, without takers. Bulk meats inactive and nominal. Lard is more active. We report sales of 500 tres and 200 bbls at 10c.

DETROIT, DECEMBER 17TH.—There has been an active competition for dressed hogs, principally among shippers, and prices mostly have ruled 12@25c above last week. This particularly the case from Wednesday until Friday, when choice lots of 250@300 were quick at $6,12½, and in some cases $6,25 was paid, but this was considered an extreme figure. As the week closes the market is less excited, and the tendency is downward. Packers are mostly out of the market until lower rates prevail. Some of the shippers have also withdrawn. No returns have yet been received from country shipments, and when they are received it is shrewdly predicted that the shipping demand will fall off. The only offering from rail to-day was a choice lot averaging 265, for which $6,00 was the most offered, a clear falling off of 12½c since yesterday, the late excitement in Cincinnati, and consequent high prices, was based upon the "short crop" theory.—As this theory is about exploded, it would seem that a decline is at least probable. The following is at present a fair range of quotations:

Lots averaging about 250		$6,00
" " "	225	5,87½
" " "	200	5,75

These may be a little below the views of holders of choice lots from store, but they are as high as can be depended upon.

MILWAUKEE DAILY MARKET.

MONDAY EVENING, December 19th.

FLOUR—The market still remains unsettled and dull. The only sale to-day was 550 bbls "Stone Mills" Spring Extra at $5 for immediate delivery at mill.

WHEAT—Market dull and 1@1½c lower. Sales 120 bus Winter at 98c; 962 bus Extra Club delivered at 95c; 250 bus do at 94c; 500 bus Club at 94c; 360 bus do on the track at 93½c; 700 bus No. 1 at 92c on the track; 1,500 bus do at 91c.

MARINE INTELLIGENCE.

MONDAY EVENING, December 19th.

The Milwaukee Afoot and All Right!

A dispatch reached here from Grand Haven yesterday announcing that the steamship Milwaukee had been got off the beach and was safe at her dock. She was got off on Saturday, but owing to some delay in the telegraph despatch to that effect,and countermanding the previous order for the tug Leviathan, did not get here until yesterday, better than 24 hours after the Leviathan had left for Grand Haven.

As the cabin furniture has been removed from the Milwaukee, it is quite probable that she will be kept at Grand Haven to have her cabin and saloon removed to the upper deck to correspond with the alterations that are being made in her consort, the Detroit. She sustained no serious damage on the beach—a fact that confirms all that has been asserted in regard to her great strength. The accident by which she was stranded—the fouling of one of the rudder chains by a piece of canvass—was not the result of any carelessness or want of ability on the part of the officers, and we now heartily congratulate them on the safety of their vessel. Had she been in any other but competent hands she would never have been extricated from so perilous a position without injury. All honor to Capt. Cross and First Engineer FITZPATRICK, neither of whom left the ship from the time she was beached until she was safe in harbor.

The alterations in the Detroit are quite forward,and as it will not require long to get the Milwaukee ready, the two favorite steamers will again soon be plying in the Lake transit.

THE LAST ARRIVAL.—The bark Badger State, Capt. VANCE, of this port, arrived from Buffalo to-day, the last of the Milwaukee fleet out, and the last vessel of the season from the lower Lakes. She had a load of coal for Chicago, and goes on there immediately to discharge it. The Badger State was delayed considerably by the ice in the Straits. The bark Sunshine came through ahead of her, and passed here yesterday bound for Chicago. There are very few steam craft, much less sail vessels that would attempt the voyage so late in the season.

The tug Leviathan left here for Grand Haven yesterday morning to assist in getting off the steamship Milwaukee; but it happened, however, that the latter was off and safe in port before the Leviathan left here, a despatch to that effect from Grand Haven on Saturday night, not having reached here until to-day.

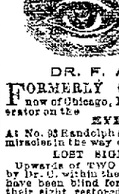
SIGHT AND HEARING



DR. F. A. CALDWELL,
FORMERLY OF TORONTO, C. W., now of Chicago, Ill, the eminent and skillful operator on the EYE AND EAR,
At No. 93 Randolph street, Chicago, is now working miracles in the way of restoring LOST SIGHT AND HEARING.
Upwards of TWO HUNDRED have been received by Dr. C. during the last four months, who have been blind for months and years, have had their sight restored instantly by DELICATE AND PERFECT OPERATIONS, while others, who have been sufferers from disease, have been miraculously cured by simple and painless treatment.

The best proof as to how Dr. C.'s services are appreciated is, that he is daily receiving new patients from all parts of the country, and dismissing, as cured, his early received cases.

No FEE is required for an examination or opinion. Dr. C. has had a large experience in the treatment of the Eye and Ear, as will be stated when the patient is received. Dr. Caldwell's TREATISE ON THE EYE AND EAR to be had gratis on application as above. aug18 6m56 d1y Feb21
